

Hi.

I'm [REDACTED] and own the [REDACTED] hectares at [REDACTED], [REDACTED] NSW [REDACTED] ([REDACTED]).

I am pro-conservation of endangered native flora and fauna and support legislation to this end.

However, if/whenever there is a change or introduction to legislation which can subsequently prevent the establishment or re-establishment of tracks or access paths through areas which are to be protected (in particular but not limited to public lands/forests/National Parks/Reserves where there were original or officially designated paths which have become overgrown or inaccessible and require clearing, it is essential that the legislation or parts thereof is written in a way, or, there are inclusions of associated clauses that are designed to protect private land holders/owners from the legislation being used by individuals, groups, and/or associations as a tool and money saving strategy to put private land holders/owners in a position where they are forced to allow public access through their land as a substitute access path between public areas. By public & groups I mean including but not limited to bush walkers, trekkers, horse riding, 4W Driving, trail hiking & bushwalking groups, associations and their members, etc.

Essentially anyone other than authorized law enforcement, Government valuer general inspectors, and essential/emergency personnel for the purpose of legitimate/official risk control activities.

There have already been numerous illegal shooting, thefts, and vandalisms on rural lands. Altering legislation without including the provisions for such necessary safeguards from such potential knock-on consequences will make it worse and greatly impact on the health, safety and security of land holders/owners, their families, and property.

Kind regards,

[REDACTED].
